"Ramona" Coming Here Soon.

Theaters here are soon to have an opportunity to judge for themselves the qualities for the amazing vogue attained by W. H. Clune's new super-photodrama, "Ramona," when recently this most pretentious cinema operatic spectacle was given its Broadway premiere. Arrangements have been made for local presentation at an early date.

Departing in a radical manner from all entertainments of a character possible to compare with it this musically embellished visualization of Helen Hunt Jackson's famous novel of California's early times—known to book-land as "the love story of the ages"—has blazed the trail for future film dramas throughout the world. The novelty of its presentation already has inspired a host of imitators.

Unfolding in superbly acted scenes—more than 1,000 of them—one of the most enthralling romances ever told, "Ramona" carries its audiences through the thrilling events of California before and after the American conquest of Mexico, portraying the wonderful love of a maiden whose father was a Scotchman and whose mother was an Indian princess, for the son of the chieftain of the Mission Indians.

Carried through the dainty love scenes as well as into the thrilling raids of the white settlers on the Indian villages is a theme of heart-gripping intensity, the spell of which holds unbroken throughout the entire period of the three-hour performance. This is made doubly effective by a music score of elaborate composition to render which requires a special orchestra.

Palace.

In all the thousands of motion pictures which have been given to the public, never has a star been gowned with the sort of frocks, hats, shoes and lingerie that Miss Billie Burke is to wear in "Gloria's Romance," the new motion picture novel from the pen of Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Hughes, which Manager Harry Lowenstein of the Palace theatre has booked, and the first chapter of which will be seen on the screen on Friday, Sept. 1.

In stageland Miss Burke is famous for the wonderful gowns that have graced her person, each season seeming to have found her with a more gorgeous array than the preceding one, but during the course of the new animated novel she is going to wear costumes especially designed for her by Henri Bendel, Lucile and Balcom, that will outshine any gowns in which she has been seen in the past. Dramatic critics in mentioning Miss Burke on the speaking stage have worn threadbare such adjectives as "adorable," "exquisite" and "lovely," and all of them have fallen far short of describing this fascinating little star. Photography cannot flatter Miss Burke, for it requires a Henner to portray the wonderful red goldness of her hair, the milk-whiteness of her skin and the slender girliness of her figure. Whether wearing a sapphire-blue velvet dinner gown, cut in Grecian lines with a gathered semi-high waist line and flowing sleeves of pale yellow chiffon, her hair done high on her head and piled into a fountain of curls, or dressed in one of any "inexpensive" street gowns of serge at $85 to $95 apiece, she is adorable. As for shoes, she has more than a hundred and thirty pairs to choose from, ranging all the way from black, white and tan shoes for street wear, through sport boots and dancing slippers, with diamond buckles to footgear of wonderful Persian material that cost more than $100 per pair.

In "Gloria's Romance" in which Miss Burke portrays the role of a wealthy society girl, a $15,000 Russian sable coat, a blue and gold and metal embroidered evening coat, trimmed with silver fox fur, valued at $2,500, and a dinner gown trimmed with lace that was priced at $150 per yard. Feminine picture goers will find the picture a regular fashion bazaar and undoubtedly will follow it with interest.

Theatatorium.

The second chapter of the great serial "Liberty" will be shown at the Theatatorium today and tomorrow. One chapter will be shown here every week on Sunday and Monday. Following a short synopsis of episode number two:

While Liberty is attempting to make her escape Pedro, the faithful servant, is hurling dynamite at Lopez and his men and in so doing blows up a part of the hut. This so frightens Lopez's men that he has a hard time rallying them.

Manuel and Rutledge are fighting on the top of the cliff with knives, but Manuel is disarmed, and Rut-

INDORSED FOR THE GOVERNORSHIP

JUDGE SAMUEL SEABURY

Democrats of New York, assembled in unofficial convention, gave their indorsement for the gubernatorial nomination in the primaries to Judge Samuel Seabury of the court of appeals, the court of last resort in New York state. Judge Seabury is a native and resident of New York city and has practiced law there for about twenty years. In 1901 he was elected judge of the city court, and in 1906 he won election to the state supreme court, being advanced to the court of appeals in 1914. He is one of the youngest men who ever sat in that high tribunal, being only forty-three years old now. In a recent interview, that was read widely, Judge Seabury affirmed his strong faith in progressive democracy.

ledge, wishing to play fair, throws away his knife and the two fight bare-handed. Manuel gets the best of him and forces him over the edge of the cliff, but Rutledge manages to retain a hold by hanging in midair. This is seen by Liberty and Pedro and they start to the aid of Rutledge, but before they arrive Rutledge has managed to regain his foothold. Just as they arrive he is on the point of hurling Manuel over the cliff, when Liberty calls and he throws him to the ground instead.

When they arrive at the camp of the major, she tells him of the attack. The major thinks that by riding hard they will be able to warn Colonel Dalton. This is heard by one of Lopez's men and he leaves to warn Lopez. Just as the major and his men are mounting they are attacked by Lopez and forced to seek shelter. Liberty, realizing the seriousness of the situation, offers to ride to the colonel's quarters and warn him, and so she and Pedro leave, but not, however, without being observed by Lopez, who orders three of his men to capture her.

Manuel has not entered the fight, but is watching from behind a rock. Just as Rutledge is loading his gun, Manuel fires at him and the bullet tears the gun from his hand. As he starts to fire a second time the major walks up behind him and knocks him down, warning him to stop. The fighting continues.

Liberty is rushing along the trail, closely followed by the Mexicans. She decides to play a ruse on them and strings a rope across the trail just at a bend. It is effective, and two Mexicans are knocked from their horses. Just as she reaches the camp the Mexicans, who have regained their horses and pursued her, fire. Some men from the camp come out to rescue her, as she has collapsed from sheer exhaustion and is hanging limply with one foot caught in her saddle.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and for years it was supposed to be incurable. Doctors prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Catarrh is a local disease, greatly influenced by constitutional conditions, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is a constitutional remedy, is taken internally and acts through the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces of the System. One Hundred Dollars' reward is offered for any case that Hall's Catarrh Cure fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

INTENSE HEAT PREVAILS ON EDGE OF ARTIC CIRCLE.

Stockholm, Aug. 26. (Correspondence of Associated Press).—Travelers returning from the north this summer are complaining of the intense heat prevailing at the southern edge of the Arctic Circle.

Travelers to Russia, who have had to make the journey by rail all the way around the Gulf of Bothnia, say they have suffered intensely from the heat while on the northern reaches of their four days trip.

At Haparanda, where passengers transferred from Sweden to Finland, the temperatures this summer have ranged from 10 to 20 degrees warmer than here in Stockholm, several hundred miles to the south. This difference is of course attributed to the longer hours of sunshine prevailing in the north, Haparanda being but a short distance from the zone of mid-night sun.

In company with the rest of Europe Sweden turned up the clock one hour this summer, although "daylight saving" was hardly a necessity in this land of long twilights and white nights. Daylight football games have been played this summer beginning at 8:20 p. m., and eighteen holes of golf have been possible after a 7 o'clock dinner.

UGH! CALOMEL MAKES YOU DEATHLY SICK

Stop using dangerous drug before it salivates you!
It's horrible!

You're bilious, sluggish, constipated and believe you need vile, dangerous calomel to start your liver and clean your bowels.

Here's my guarantee! Ask your druggist for a 50 cent bottle of Doan's Liver Tonic and take a spoonful tonight. If it doesn't start your liver and straighten you right up better than calomel and without griping or making you sick I want you to go back to the store and get your money.

Take calomel today and tomorrow you will feel weak and sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day's work. Take a spoonful of harmless, vegetable Doan's Liver Tonic tonight and wake up feeling great. It's perfectly harmless, so give it to your children any time. It can't salivate, so let them eat anything afterwards.
